

Spring Coyote Ranch

Spring Coyote Ranch

- 150 acres of coastal prairie + riparian located in Marshall, CA between Point Reyes Station and Tomales.
- The "Spring Coyote" is a copper etching by my friend Julia Lucey @julia_lucey.
- Our ranch has a year round stream that flows into Tomales Bay. The stream was a gathering site for Coast Miwok and has a sizable shellmound nearby.
- Our primary focus is Navajo-Churro sheep. We also have chickens, guard dogs, guard llamas, and recently started a herd of Spanish Goats for mobile grazing.
- We are passionate about animal husbandry and land stewardship. Life is a constant balance between day-to-day task management (aka chores!) and long-range goals.
- We sell lamb shares direct-to-customer every fall. We deliver across the Bay Area. We also sell livestock, wool products, and sheepskins.
- Our website is springcoyoteranch.com. Follow us on Instagram @springcoyoteranch.

Rainbow Fiber Co-Op

- Rainbow Fiber Co-Op is an exciting new agricultural co-operative dedicated to paying Navajo shepherds a fair price for their Navajo-Churro wool.
- The Co-Op raised funds through grants and private donations to execute their first wool buy on the Navajo Nation this past summer. We also paid the mill fees for processing the wool into yarn at Mora Valley Spinning Mill.
- We will offer Navajo-grown weaving yarns for sale through our website at rainbowfibercoop.org. 100% of revenue will go back into operational expenses.
- The Co-Op structure gives our Navajo producer members a say in decisionmaking. In the event we ever made a profit, it goes out to members.
- The Co-Op is launching its first collection online in a matter of days. Go to rainbowfibercoop.org and sign up to be on the email list! You can donate via the website if you would like to help support the project through 2022.
- Follow the Co-Op on Instagram @rainbowfibercoop and @navajoshepherd.
